Question 4

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

At last, the bomb was made. The site chosen for the test explosion was the desert region north of Alamogordo, two hundred miles from Los Alamos. The bomb was taken by road and placed on a gaunt tower, hundred feet high and weighing thirty-two tons, erected on the top of a hill. The code name for it was Zero Hill. Zero hour was 5:30 a.m. on Monday, July 16, 1945.

Oppenheimer himself was at the control centre about 9 miles from Zero Hill. There were a thousand spectators including scientists, government officials and a strong security force. All not on duty were told to lie down flat, face and eyes directed towards the ground and with the head away from Zero Hill.

At forty-five seconds to Zero Hour Dr Joseph L. McKibben of California University set in motion a weird master robot, which set other robots in motion. More than five hundred miles of wiring was used to activate the bomb. Electronic impulses were set in motion and relayed messages. Observers stood with coloured film over their eyes and heads averted. Overhead two B-29 Superfortresses hovered, equipped with recording instruments to test reactions in the atmosphere.

Ten seconds before Zero Hour a green flare warned the spectators to keep down. Then came the blinding flash.

The whole area was suddenly brighter than the brightest daylight, and the blast appeared like a ball of fire. Even at nine miles the heat was scorching. Then came a tremendous roar and a heavy pressure wave which knocked down two men outside the control centre. And then came the cloud- the mushroom cloud, all the colours of the rainbow ironically beautiful, surging up to over 40,000 feet, over 10,000 feet higher than Mount Everest.

The great steel tower had gone. Lead-lined Sherman tanks took scientists towards the huge sloping crater where it had stood, to see the effects of radiation on the surface of the earth. But there was no earth. The sand had melted and turned into green glass.
